25X1A9a [ ] as co-chairman of the Course with this running.

3. Intelligence and World Affairs

The first week of Intelligence and World Affairs got off to a start surprisingly free of confusion or problems which usually accompany a move to new facilities. The postponement of the course for one week resulted in a few conflicts in commitments by our staff so that the normal sequence of presentations had to be changed, but again with a minimum of trouble. The students have been active during this first week and have been willing to ask a number of questions during the lectures -- student participation has been high.
